We Would All Like to Know

TWC Television Host: Alright folks, and we are back with Alexandria Brown. We've given her a week to think about everything, and we're expecting to hear some insightful highlights and hopefully some hints at her future plans.

happy brass jingle

TWC Television Host: Are you ready?

Audience: Yeah!

TWC Television Host: I'm not sure I heard you, are you ready?

Audience: Yeah!

TWC Television Host: Let's bring her out!

pulls back curtain

TWC Television Host: Alexandria Brown, everyone.

rounds of applause

TWC Television Host: So glad to have you with us. You look...rather relaxed. You're wearing an eclectic pair of pajamas? Yes?

Me: Yeah, they actually don't match. This is just a grey t-shirt and my bottoms...I think I got them from the maternity section of Target a couple years ago.

TWC Television Host: And your hair—I actually don't see much of it, is that some sort of head tie...wrap?

Me: It's a head scarf, I wear it to bed a lot.

TWC Television Host: Okay. So tell us what have you been up to?

Me: Man, yeah...yeah, been Netflixing pretty hard, reading here and there... applied for a media fellowship a couple days ago....

Audience: Aaaaaahhhhhh

This is kinda how I imagined this blog post would go. Maybe I'd toss out a couple inspirational things I noticed in DC, maybe recycle a few things I've written about regarding my internship and, of course, mention the applications I've touched (or looked at). Let's break it down.

Where I am:

Back in my home state of Michigan. On my bed facing the one window that is responsible for a majority of the natural light in my room. The window frames a cul-de-sac covered in several inches of white-out snow. Just a few moments ago, I was scrolling through my timeline on Facebook and someone shared an Huff Post article that caught my eye titled Millennials Are Screwed by Michael Hobbes.

If you, reader, would enjoy a digestible breakdown of our generational demise, I would definitely recommend. Even you don't care to read it, at least take a peek at it. The visuals are nice and (somewhat) comical. Anyway, where was I....bed, window, sad article....oh, right! I had then taken some time to listen to Tyler the Creator's album "Flower Boy." I like it. This is where I am.

Me: And that's where I will stop. I have decided that where I am is what's most important for right now. Did I enjoy my time in Washington DC? Absolutely. Did I learn a ton? Absolutely. I mean, when you're in a new environment that's kind of inevitable, you know?

TWC Television Host: Okay, Alexandria. I just have one last question and I'm sure the audience would love to know...

Me: Sure, what's your question?

TWC Television Host: What's next?

Me: Well, I'm a senior. I've got another semester to go...so I guess the goal is to graduate.

TWC Television Host: And after that?

Me: I'll let you know when I get there. winks at camera

curtains close

It's been fun. Best of luck to you future/non-future TWC-ers. Thanks for reading and hope you all have a great holiday season!
